World View

KAKU: Ancient Seal is an open world ARPG game with an ancient fantasy theme. Set in a primordial era, this world was created by the elemental power of the Creator Saga. One day, a calamity from another realm strikes, causing the dispersion of the elemental souls, and the world splits into four continents, while the Creator Saga goes missing.

Millennia later, a young man named Kaku, living in the vast snowy mountains, along with Piggy, a flying pig, shoulders the task of finding the lost elemental souls under the guidance of a lost prophecy. They embark on an ancient and fantastical adventure to uncover the truth behind the calamity and the mystery of their own origins.

Floating Island

Floating Island, where Saga resided after the creatio of the world. Once a lush, green paradise, it was razed during The War of the Gods, fracturing the island itself into several pieces. The word of God's creation, inscribed on the remaining stele, have long since been buried... but Kaku's arrival has disturbed the deathly silence. What stories do the Temple ruins tell, and what secrets might be uncovered?

Wind Elemental Ruins

Realm of Purple Lightning, The Wind Ruins' exterior resembles a pair of closed giant wings, with surrounding stones floating like feathers, exuding the agility of the wind. The void around it is filled with a mysterious purple mist, vaporized by the wind element's power, often accompanied by lightning. Only by following the wind's path can adventurers traverse it, dancing with the wind.

Fire Elemental Ruins

Realm of Blazing Heat, The Fire Ruins are as magnificent as a campfire's pattern, forged from lava with a black and red exterior radiating intense heat. Red veins pulse with molten flows, and white steam often rises from within. The void is filled with fiery embers, resonating with the red pulses. In the Realm of Blazing Heat, courage and wisdom are the only paths to survival.

Ponpon Elite

As the oldest race in this land, the Ponpon have a well-defined hierarchical organization. At the most basic level are the Ponpon Minions. They are usually tasked with patrolling, guarding, hunting, and pioneering, diligent and hardworking, always faithfully executing the tasks assigned by their leaders, albeit prone to messing things up due to their lack of intelligence.

After learning of the demise of The Creator Saga, the Ponpon was once split into two factions: the staunch faction wearing hard-shelled headgear and the hedonistic faction adorned with pinecones as headwear. It was not until the mysterious leader conveyed the prophecy that The Creator Saga would eventually return that they united as one. As for why they always wear masks, there is such a record on an extremely ancient stele: The current tribe members are short in stature and naive in appearance, no longer possessing the bravery of their ancestors. Therefore, they cover their faces with masks, fierce and hideous, to intimidate their enemies.

A continent famous for its unique landscape of vibrant tundra and frozen deserts. Few creatures can survive its freezing winds and even the bravest adventurers tread carefully upon its snowy lands. A mysterious trigger sits in a glacier-formed valley, smoldering like a newly-woken beast.smoke rising upwards.

Desert Wonders

The towering arches of Arche, the emerald Twin Oases, and massive skeletons of ancient creatures imbue these lands with whimsical color. An adventurer bragged about the time he repelled the desert's beasts and seized its treasure to a flattering, yet envious, audience. They did not care so much for another traveler's story, of the day the desert swallowed his companions, the ground rumbling while darkness filled the air.
